Re: Raw Honey from the Socialist Republic of Vietnam: Initiation of Antidumping Duty Changed Circumstances Review – Comments

Excellency,

With reference to the U.S. Department of Commerce's Notice of Initiation of Antidumping Duty Changed Circumstances Review for reviewing the non-market economy status of Vietnam (Fed Vol. 88, No. 208), Vietnam Timber and Forest Products Association (VIFOREST), on behalf of Vietnamese wood processing and trading companies, sincerely requests your consideration to recognize Vietnam having market economy as it fully meets requirements under the following 6 required legal factors:

(i) Conversion level of Vietnamese currency to currencies of other countries

VIFOREST reconfirms that Vietnamese currency (VND) is convertible to US$ in international trade transactions. Vietnam has become a top supplier of wooden products to the US and, in return, is amongst the largest buyers of US logs and lumbers from the US, following China. In 2022, Vietnam's wood imports from the US accounted for 6.4% of the total US wood export value. All these trade transactions are done in US$, and both Vietnamese and US operators have not experienced any single problem relating to the convertibility of Vietnamese currency. Our members do not face any obstacles or limitations in making or receiving payments in US Dollars. All payment appliances needed for international transactions are in place in Vietnam. VIFOREST's members are free to sell US$ to get VND or perform any payment obligations in US dollars, including those of loan repayment. In addition, foreign exchange derivatives such as currency swaps between Vietnamese dong and US dollars are allowable in Vietnam.

(ii) Wage levels in Vietnam are determined through free negotiation between employees and employers

Vietnam has 7,120 enterprises¹ operating in the field of wood and non-wood forest product manufacturing. These entities are currently employing 150,839 workers². In 2021, the average salary of wood industry workers is 7,804,000 VND³ (equivalent to 322 US$). Relations between wood enterprise owners and employees are regulated by the Labor Code.⁴ Accordingly, labor relations are established through dialogue, negotiation, and agreement in the principles of voluntariness, goodwill, equality, cooperation, and respect of each other's legitimate rights and interests. This means that employees are entirely voluntary and equal to negotiate and determine working conditions with their employers. In wood enterprises, employees and employers have the right to freely negotiate wages provided that wage levels used by both sides for wage negotiation are not below the minimum wage prescribed by the State (see attached in Appendix 1). Employees are entitled to be paid subject to their capacity and professional qualifications.

(iii) The extent to which joint ventures or other forms of investments by foreign companies in Vietnam are allowed

Vietnam has absolutely no restrictions applicable for foreign invested enterprises which are engaging in wood processing and trading business in Vietnam, including those of US investors. Similar to Vietnamese entities, FDI enterprises are free of raw wood material import and export of value-added products attributed to HS94 of customs code.

(iv) Degree of government ownership and/or control over means of production

The own and/or control of the means of production applied by Vietnamese wood enterprises are in compliance with the provisions of the Enterprise Law 2025⁶. According to this Law, businesses have the right to possess, use and dispose of assets. Common means of production possessed by wood operators are factory infrastructure, machinery and equipment as well as raw materials invested and owned by enterprises, and they have the right to dispose them. In particular, businesses have the right to sell, exchange, donate, lend, inherit, relinquish ownership rights, consume, destroy or perform other forms of disposal in accordance with the provisions of the legal framework regulating the possession of assets. The government does not own or control production means belonging to businesses. Enterprises are entitled to lease land for setting up factories in/outside industrial zones and they are eligible to claim for land-use right certificates to be granted by competent authorities. The term of land lease is subject to decision by local authorities where the factories are located, but must not exceed 50 years. For investment projects located in particularly difficult economic regions, the term of land lease can be extended but not exceeding 70 years. During the production process, businesses have the right to transfer or re-rent land-lease right.

(v) The degree of government control over resource allocation as well as enterprise pricing and output decisions

Wood businesses have complete autonomy in allocating resources and determining product prices. The government has no control over resource allocation and business output and price decisions.

⁵ <https://www.tracuuphapluat.info/2011/10/luat-doanh-nghiep-2005-law-on-enterprises.html>

The 2020 Enterprise Law stipulates that enterprises have the following rights (see attached Appendix 2):

- Autonomy in business doing and choosing forms of business organizations; proactively choose preferable industries, occupations, locations, and forms of business; proactively adjust business scale and industries;
- Proactively apply science and technology advantages to improve business efficiency and competitiveness; have intellectual property rights protected according to the provisions of law on intellectual property;
- Free to choose forms and methods of mobilizing, allocating and using capital;
- Free to recruit, hire and use labor force according to labor laws.

The allocation of relevant resources, including skills, expertise as well as equipment required for production and business activities and capital are all self-controlled by businesses without any Government intervention.

(vi) Other factors that the management agency considers appropriate

Vietnamese wood operators have been complying with US Lacey Act and other legal provisions regulating wood and wood product trade in the US. The Government of Vietnam and the US Government have signed the Agreement on Controlling Illegal Timber Harvesting and Trade. This Agreement demonstrates the commitment of the Vietnamese Government and private sector to re-enforce control to assure legal and deforestation-free wood and wood product supply chains, improve forest governance and responsible forest product trade.

The Government of Vietnam has also made measures to combat origin fraud and circumvention/evasion of import duties on wood products imported into the US.

With above comments/judgements, VIFOREST trust that, in the context of dynamic changes and improvements in the business environ as mentioned earlier, Vietnam has completely transformed into a market economy. On behalf of Vietnamese wood processors and traders, VIFOREST respectfully requests the US Secretary of Commerce to review the circumstances and recognize Vietnam as a country of market economy. We look forward to having continued cooperation between Vietnam and the US in wood industries for mutual benefits of businesses and consumers of the two countries.

Yours sincerely,

Do Xuan Lap

Chairman of VIFOREST

Re: Initiation of Antidumping Duty Changed Circumstances Review to examine Vietnam’s non-market economy status – [CUSTOMER’S NAME]’s comments

Dear Excellency,

We, , are[short introduction of your company]. We are one of the importers of..... from Vietnam in the period from..... to.....

Upon receipt of information about the US Department of Commerce's Change of Circumstance Review of the antidumping duty (AD) order on raw honey from the Socialist Republic of Vietnam (Vietnam) to examine whether Vietnam graduates from a non-market economy country for purposes of the application of the AD law, we have expressed our support in this regard to Our Exporters in Viet Nam.

We hereby submit our Comments to indicate our support for the initiation of the Change of Circumstances Review and our belief that Vietnam has successfully accomplished sufficient progress to ensure a favorable determination of their Market Economy status as follows:

First, throughout of conducting business with some of our importers in Vietnam such as:....., payments in US Dollars are processed smoothly and without any difficulties or delays related to the transaction currency.

Second, regarding the price of commodities, each time we purchase a specific product or shipment, the pricing of the goods is always agreed between us and the Vietnamese importers. We understand that during the negotiation, our importers always set the selling price on their own, without consulting any state agency. When it comes to making decisions, they are independent and steadfast. Additionally, we discover that the price offered by the Vietnamese Exporter is appropriate for the market and the quality of the goods that we purchase.

Third, we are aware that since 2018, 72 countries have recognized Vietnam as a market economy. While we do not claim to have conducted a review of each country’s methodology for reaching this determination, we do believe that our continuing to treat Vietnam as a Non-Market Economy could interfere with our efforts to expand our potential investment and exports to this growing market. At the same time, identifying Viet Nam as a market economy will not prevent U.S. trade remedies against the country, if necessary under U.S. laws. It basically means that Vietnamese manufacturers can defend themselves by using their own cost data. The trade remedies law of the U.S. can still manage the market distortion (if any).

Based on the foregoing, we believe that Vietnam satisfies the requirements to be acknowledged as a market economy. Recognizing Vietnam as a market economy will create a fair and equitable business environment while reserving the DOC’s right to introduce trade remedy mechanisms in the future. As an importer, the economic losses that damage us will also be reduced when Vietnam can use their own data in trade remedy investigations.

Thank you for your ongoing efforts to ensure US trade is treated fairly in terms of international commerce. Please let us know if we can be of assistance.

Your sincerely,
